Mr.

Senate Bill 134 (SB 134) was passed during the 2005 legislative session to amend existing law (NRS 656A). Among other considerations, NRS 656A addresses requirements for sign language interpreters in public and private schools. Since its inception, this law has required certification of interpreters, and has specified that a person may engage in the practice of interpreting in a public or private school for not more than three years without satisfying all requirements for certification if certain conditions are met.

SB 134, Section 10 amends NRS 656A as follows:

Extension of time in meeting requirements. NRS 656A.100.4 originally provided three years for any individual who engaged in the practice of interpreting to gain the knowledge and skills necessary to meet the established requirements. This timeline would have expired July 1, 2005. The amendments to this section extend the timeline to comply with the requirements of this section until July 1, 2007.

Extension of time for enforcement. NRS 656A.800 required enforcement of all requirements and applicable penalties for individuals who engage in interpreting by July 1, 2005. The amendments have extended the enforcement and application of penalties to July 1, 2007.

As further indicated in SB 134, Section 10, both of the above amendments apply "if the person [practicing interpreting] makes satisfactory and deliberate progress, as determined by the school, charter school or private school that employs the person, toward complying with the requirements of paragraph (a) or (b) of NRS 656A.100 during the period of employment."

Section 11(a) of SB134 further requires that the Legislative Committee on Persons with Disabilities conduct a study to review, among other things, the manner in which school districts can meet the needs of students who are deaf or have a hearing impairment, including the provision of interpreting services are required under NRS 656A.

The Nevada Department of Education (NDE) is required to notify school districts, charter schools, and private schools regarding these above referenced amendments. Additionally, as with other special education considerations, the NDE is pleased to provide technical assistance to schools and districts as they comply with these requirements. If you need additional information about the requirements of

Senate Bill No. 134—Senators Mathews,

CHAPTER.....

AN ACT relating to interpreters; requiring providers of Communication Access Realtime Translation to meet certain qualifications; prohibiting certain acts relating to such providers; providing a penalty; extending the effective date for the application of penalties to certain persons who engage in the practice of interpreting in public schools and private schools; requiring the Legislative Committee on Persons with Disabilities to study certain issues related to the provision of communication services for pupils who are deaf or hearing impaired and for all residents of this State who are deaf or hearing impaired; requiring the boards of trustees of school districts to review certain information related to the salaries of persons who provide interpreting services in public schools; and providing other matters properly relating thereto.

Legislative Counsel's Digest:

Existing law recognizes that sign language interpreting is a learned profession and is subject to regulation to protect the public from unqualified interpreters. (NRS 656A.010) Existing law requires certification of interpreters, including persons who engage in the practice of interpreting for pupils in public schools and private schools. (NRS 656A.100) Existing law provides penalties, effective on July 1, 2005, for persons who do not comply with the certification requirements. (NRS 656A.800) Existing law does not require realtime captioning providers to meet any qualifications or obtain certification before providing realtime captioning services in Nevada.

This bill recognizes that realtime captioning is a learned profession, providing a service similar to sign language interpreting, and makes providers of realtime captioning services subject to regulation.

This bill requires that providers of realtime captioning services meet certain qualifications, including certification as a court reporter by the Certified Court Reporters' Board of Nevada or certification as a Registered Professional Reporter, Certified Communication Access Realtime Translation Provider, Certified Broadcast Captioner or Certified Realtime Reporter by the National Court Reporters Association, before providing realtime captioning services in Nevada. This bill creates a penalty for unqualified people who practice realtime captioning in Nevada.

Existing law provides that a person may engage in the practice of interpreting in a public school or private school for not more than 3 years without satisfying all requirements for certification if certain conditions are met. (NRS 656A.100)

This bill provides that the certification requirements and penalties do not apply until July 1, 2007, to a person who is currently engaged in the practice of interpreting in a public school or private school pursuant to the 3-year waiver if the person makes satisfactory and deliberate progress toward complying with the certification requirements.

Existing law creates the Legislative Committee on Persons with Disabilities. (NRS 218.5379-218.53797)

This bill requires the Legislative Committee on Persons with Disabilities to conduct a study during the 2005-2007 interim to determine the manner by which school districts can meet the needs of the pupils who are deaf or hearing impaired and the manner by which accessible communication can be provided and improved for all residents of this State who are deaf or hearing impaired.

This bill also requires school districts to review the salaries of the persons who are employed to provide interpreting services to pupils.

APPENDIX C

INTERPRETER USE INVENTORY

Brenda Schick, Ph.D., University of Colorado, Boulder

The following considerations must be considered when determining if a student is able to benefit from the services of an educational interpreter.

1. The Student Can:

- ☐ learn abstract, decontextualized material
- ☐ learn new vocabulary from typical classroom exposure
- ☐ comprehend class content and instructions
- ☐ understand what to do without the interpreter directing
- ☐ make age appropriate progress without excessive assistance
- ☐ complete class material and tests without interpreter assistance

2. Understanding of the Role of the Interpreter

- ☐ Demonstrates age-appropriate expectations for the interpreting role
- ☐ Maintains appropriate boundaries with the interpreter
- ☐ Allows the interpreter to mostly interpret

3. Use of Interpreter

- ☐ Recruit interpreting assistance when needed
- ☐ Understands when an interpreter is needed
- ☐ Takes control of communication
- ☐ Speaks up about missing information
- ☐ Able to request clarification from the interpreter
- ☐ Participates in class discussion
- ☐ Participates in small group discussion

4. Social Understanding

- ☐ Interacts with peers about class materials
- ☐ Interacts with peers about social issues
- ☐ Appreciates traits and personalities
- ☐ Has authentic relationships
- ☐ Able to argue, play, prefer, negotiate, persuade peers
- ☐ Participates appropriately in class

5. Attentional Factors

- ☐ Able to attend to interpreter and teacher
- ☐ Can coordinate multiple visual demands of complex visual environment

6. Adjustments in Interpretations

- ☐ How much does the interpreter alter content in order to make it more accessible for the student?
- ☐ How much does the interpreter expand on concepts presented in class either during class or after class?
- ☐ What changes are made to classroom vocabulary for the student?
- ☐ How much does the interpreter adjust the language to make it more accessible?

Interpreting Determines Educational Access

FACT SHEET

CRISIS in Educational Interpreting Services

Schools are accountable for what their students learn.

"If communication goes awry, it affects the intellectual growth, social intercourse, language development and emotional attitudes, all at once, simultaneously and inseparably."
(Oliver Sacks, 1989)

- Educational performance of students who are Deaf/Hard of Hearing remains poor. The average reading comprehension of 18 year old students was reported at just below 4th grade on the SAT-9 (Traxler, 2000).
- If performance on standardized assessments is to improve, students who are Deaf/Hard of Hearing must have full (100%) access to all aspects of the curriculum and instruction.
- The ability to learn is denied when students do not have qualified interpreters.

No Child Left Behind

In addition to accountability, adequate yearly progress, and school improvement, NCLB addresses "highly qualified" providers. Educational interpreters must also be held to the provisions of this law. Because there are currently no national professional standards for educational interpreters, it is imperative that IDEA defines a standard.

- Current OSEP data is unreliable because there is no national professional standard.
 - o US Office of Education 23rd Annual Report to Congress (2002), based on 98-99 school year data, indicated that there were 4,588 interpreters employed by schools in the US and that 567 (12.4%) were not certified. How are states determining whether interpreters are qualified or not?
- Schools must also have an objective, verifiable method of assessment to determine whether its sign language interpreters are qualified.
- Achievement is limited when students do not have access to a qualified interpreter

Role of the Educational Interpreter

The educational interpreter's responsibilities include:

- Interpreting all school-related communication according to the student's language ability and the goals of the IEP.

In regular classrooms, hearing students generally communicate by speaking and listening. For many deaf students, however,

➤ Many students who are Deaf/Hard of Hearing enter school with language competencies below those of their hearing peers. Interpreters must be able to convey the intent of the instructor into language that is meaningful to the student.

- Tutoring, or clarifying, instructional information for the student.
- Participating on the educational team related to student progress and achievement.
- Providing expertise to the educational team (e.g., helping student learn to use interpreting services) (MENUS, p. 14).

interpreters are needed to facilitate communication with their teachers and classmates. IDEA requires that deaf students be integrated into regular classroom settings to the maximum extent possible, but if quality interpreting services are not provided, that goal becomes a mockery.

(COED, 1988, p. 103).

Most children are not receiving services from a qualified interpreter.

- Most states do not have minimum standards for educational interpreter qualifications (Project Forum, Nov. 2000, NASDSE).
- For states with minimum interpreter qualifications, many current standards are at a level that results in interpretation reflecting accuracy at approximately 75% of the classroom discourse (EIPA level 3.5), with frequent errors, confusions, and deletions.
- Most states have no measure related to the knowledge sets that are necessary in order to effectively apply the interpreting skills in a K-12 setting.
- For states with minimum standards, there is no reliable data regarding the percentage of educational interpreters who meet the requirements.
- Approximately 50% of working interpreters' qualifications is unknown because they have not been evaluated. (Jones, In Press)

Communication remains the primary challenge within educational settings for students who are Deaf/Hard of Hearing.

- Each student's communication needs are individualized. They are based on variables unique to the student, such as age of onset and severity of the hearing loss, as well as the student's and parent's preferences (MENUS, 2002).
- IDEA further requires that the communication needs of each student be considered. 34CFR300.346a(iv).

"The primary problem of our students is not too little hearing, but too much interpersonal and informational isolation."
(Harold Johnson, Ph.D.,
Kent State University, 2003)

- 80% of students who are Deaf/Hard of Hearing spend a portion of their day in the general education classroom; approximately 23% of these students utilize interpreters (Gallaudet Research Institute, 2003).
- For many students, the interpreter is the only communication link during their school day.
- 72 percent of families of children who use sign language do not use sign language with their children (Gallaudet Research Institute, 2002); for these children, the interpreter may be the only person with whom they can communicate effectively.
- Communication access is denied to students when they do not have qualified interpreters.

Recommendation for "Qualified Interpreter" in IDEA

Educational interpreters provide a variety of interpreting services (e.g., American Sign Language, Cued Speech, English Sign Systems, Oral) in an educational setting. Individuals who function as interpreters, regardless of job title, in providing these related services to students who are Deaf/Hard of Hearing, should document the following:

Essential Qualifications	Preferred Qualifications

Sit so that student can see you, light does not shine in student's eyes, wear clothing that is NOT distracting; appropriate nail length and neutral nail color are required.	2. Assist student and Interpreter to find best place for everyone involved. Recognize seating and appropriate placement of Interpreter is critical for student.	2. Assist teacher with room seating arrangement to optimize placement for deaf/hard of hearing student.
3. Know that the teacher is responsible to provide instruction, give assignments, explain lessons, answer questions and be in charge. The Interpreter is NOT responsible for telling you what you missed or did not understand in a lesson.	3. Repeat instruction only when needed, not routinely. Refer student questions about the lesson to teacher.	3. Be responsible for ALL students in class, student's needs and questions. Contact Deaf Ed. teacher directly if problems develop. Speak directly to student when asking questions; use blackboard or printed data for information the student is expected to learn or recall.	3. Maintain ongoing contact regarding student's progress and placement. In-service teacher on deafness and instructional techniques that could be used. Provide assistive devices such as caption decoders, TDD, and FM auditory equipment as appropriate.
Read and complete all class assignments. Ask teacher for more explanation if you have questions. Do not depend on Interpreter or notetaker to answer your questions or give you information about classwork or assignments.	4. Familiarize self with class content and signs needed. Request textbook(s), handouts, and, when possible, videos.	4. Unless otherwise arranged, expect same work from all students and answer questions directly to student. Do not expect Interpreter to tutor or assume instructional responsibilities. When possible, give the Interpreter textbook pages, handout(s) and/or time to preview video prior to their use in the classroom.	4. Assist teacher with problems if any occur, maintain contact, reinforce student responsibilities, assist Interpreter, and arrange assistance if student wants/needs extra help.

5. If using a notetaker and interpreter, you still need to be responsible for material presented...do not distract the interpreter or talk about other subjects.	5. Interpret instructions as presented; avoid talking about other areas; encourage student to participate in discussion/conversations with peers when appropriate.	5. Make sure deaf student is responsible for content material, encourage participation, identify notetaker in class, and maintain contact with deaf ed. teacher. Interpreter will discourage student who tries to converse about "off task" topics by breaking eye contact and/or voicing what student is saying.	5. Maintain contact with regular ed teacher, provide notetaking paper, explain process to student and student notetaker as necessary.
6. Be aware of all assignments, scheduled tests and projects assigned for the class.	6. Encourage students to assume responsibility for assignments, without depending on you for this information.	6. Make sure you write required projects, assignments, tests and/or other similar items on the board so the students can also have a visual reminder.	6. Identify ways teacher can post information for all students on their responsibilities and class tests, assignments and projects as necessary.
7. Know that learning the material assigned in your class is YOUR responsibility.	7. Do not do the work for the students. Help students realize the learning process is THEIRS not yours. Provide assistance and guidance as directed by AH teacher or AH coordinator.	7. Make sure work turned in is student's work. Conference with student if you feel otherwise. Support all efforts the students make.	7. Monitor the degree of help student is requesting; work with teachers to solve any problems.
Know that the interpreter is your link to the teacher, classmates and the material presented in class, therefore, you should watch the interpreter during class lectures/discussions.	8. Sign questions and answers asked by teacher, students, and/or visitors. Sign what is being presented with adjustments as determined by the ARD committee.	8. Remind student he/she needs to participate, attend to the interpreter and be a part of the class.	8. Monitor placement with ongoing class visits, conferences, staffings and distribution of Mainstream Checklists.
If you have a question about the lesson, classwork, or homework, ask the teacher, not the interpreter.	9. Voice questions, answers, comments by the student if teacher has problem understanding either their signs or speech.	9. Encourage participation; get help from the Deaf Ed. teacher if needed.	9. Inservice teachers on how to use an interpreter. Work with student to gain understanding of interpreting procedures.

10. You are expected to follow the class and school rules for students.	10. Not responsible for monitoring student behaviors.	10. Do not expect the interpreter to discipline students for you. 11. You must notify (call) the lead interpreter before school begins if you are going to be absent (or the night before if possible). See phone numbers listed at end of this document.	11. Call lead interpreter if student fails to show up for class. Do not take notes for an absent student.	11. If interpreter is absent and no substitute is available, try to write more on the board, stand closer to student for speech reading, check for understanding after class. If you are absent, document in lesson plans for sub that student uses an interpreter.	11. Provide feedback to classroom teacher with suggestions for how to modify instruction when an interpreter is not present. Help student find methods to compensate should an interpreter not be present.
12. Know that the interpreter is to stay in classroom the entire class time.	12. Plan to stay for the entire class period; a fire drill, P.A. announcement or other emergency may occur.	12. Interpreter remains in class for the entire period regardless of the type of lesson presented.	12. Follow-up if necessary.
13. Use free time to study or if permitted, talk to peers using the interpreter if needed.	13. Do not carry on unnecessary conversation with the student or teacher; interpret for peer communication as needed.	13. Encourage student to socialize with classmates when appropriate.	13. Follow-up if necessary.
14. You must fill out an interpreter request slip at least two days in advance if you need an interpreter for an extracurricular (after or before school) activity.	14. You have the right to refuse an extracurricular assignment.	14. Encourage student to request an interpreter as needed.	14. Follow-up as needed.

15. Phone calls are to be made on the TDD at appropriate times set by your school. Use an interpreter for phone calls only when TDD is not available, illness makes it hard to use TDD or if writing skills prohibit TDD use.	15. Make or interpret phone calls for students only in emergencies, when TDD equipment is unavailable or student's language/writing level prohibits their independent use of TDD.	15. Be aware of function of a TDD and existence of RELAY TEXAS.	15. Make sure appropriate TDDs and caption decoders are provided for student use as determined by ARD committee. Provide information on TDDs and RELAY TEXAS
